HAWAIIAN RESOLUTION
MINORITY REPORT OF FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE.

A Partisan Arrangement of President Cleveland and Secretary Gresham on the Hawaiian Affair.

REPUBLICAN ATTEMPT TO MAKE POLITICAL CAPITAL OF IT.
The Appointment of Blount as Commissioner to Hawaii Regarded as Usurpation of Authority by Cleveland.

Washington, December 30.—The republican members of the foreign relations committee have completed the minority report on the resolution presented by Chairman McCreary on the day congress adjourned, as a substitute bill for the Hitt resolution. It is very voluminous and goes in detail into the whole history of Blount's appointment as commissioner paramount and the course of the administration.

"When Cleveland was inaugurated on March 4, 1893," says the report, "the Hawaiians were under sovereign control of a republican government, recognized not only by the United States, but by every civilized nation. The government was in the name of provisional, but in fact was to remain in existence for an indefinite period until the time when the terms of a union with the United States were agreed upon. The minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Hawaii was in person at his post and the senate of the United States by its resolution of March 1, 1893, confirmed the appointment. It was at that time publicly stated, though not officially known, that Blount had started from Washington on March 7 on his mission to the Hawaiian Islands."

When following the instructions to Blount, with Cleveland's greeting to Dole, the narrative proceeds to relate Blount's action in hauling down the American flag and the investigation of the Hawaiian revolution. It is at length the president's power to appoint a diplomatic officer, armed with the power given Blount without the consent of the senate.

"This," the report says, "covers all that is needed to show how the president ignored the plain language of the constitution. He has assumed to appoint, of his own volition, without the advice of the senate, a diplomatic officer with paramount powers. To try to argue that Blount was not a diplomatic officer of the United States, but only a special commissioner, would be to ascribe substance to form. The powers assumed he granted constitute the real test of the character of an agent."

The minister of the United States at that time at Hawaii had been appointed under the constitution by the president and confirmed by the senate. He had never been removed. Leaving our minister nominally in charge of routine functions, the president had appointed a diplomatic officer selected by himself alone. Should the advocates of the president's policy try to defend his action by claiming that at the time the person so dying has upon his or her body this PAPER. This insurance holds good for 10 hours only, or from 7 a. m. to 11 p. m. of the date of this paper. Satisfactory proofs of each claim must be presented within 48 hours at the Business Office of The Houston Post. Remember this policy is void unless THIS PAPER is upon the person at time of death.

Then follows a discussion of the precedents in the administration of Cleveland's course covering practically the same ground traversed by Senator Hoar in his speech in the senate on the same subject. The report concludes by recommending alone to appoint a commissioner paramount with powers assumed to be given to Minister Blount," continues the report.

The real purpose of his mission was not expressed in written words, but it can not be concealed that he was to make a case against a friendly government he was accredited to. He was apparently, to use the words of President Cleveland to Mr. Dole, to advance the interests and to preserve the peace of the Hawaiian Islands. He was to try to discover such a state of facts as might appear to be a stain, both of that friendly government and on the view and reputation of the former administration of his own government.

"Not content with withdrawing the Foster treaty from the senate, which had been his constitutional right, the president was led to employ unconstitutional means and an unconstitutional agent to reveal and destroy the policy of the preceding administration. This is more than an innovation in our foreign policy, hitherto consistent and steady, since the first days of our republic. It is an unwritten but universally accepted law that no administration of any representative government ever condemns the international policy of the preceding administration, but that it would attack its own government."

Coming down to the question of the Hitt instructions, the report says: "While it is true that the personal government, to which he was to deliver his credentials, was not established by Hawaiian people, or with their consent, nor has it existed with their consent. Mr. Hitt was to notify the queen that the president would not send back to the senate the treaty withdrawn March 3. He was to inform the queen when she said that the president expected her to grant an entire amnesty to all of those concerned with the revolution, and that they should be deprived of no right or privilege."

"Having secured the queen's agreement to furnish this wise and humane policy, Hitt was to advise the executive of the provisional government of the president's determination of the question, which action and that of the queen had devolved upon him, and that they were expected to promptly relinquish to her her constitutional authority. Should either party decline Hitt was to report and await further directions. These secret and confidential instructions were made known to congress only after a resolution calling for the disclosure of the same was unanimously adopted by the house.

"The official report of the secretary of state was kept secret from the 1st of October to the week after the November elections and then made public. It aroused almost universal expression of public disapproval and contempt among the American people. The language of the report of the secretary of state, admittedly approved by the president and carried out by him, was clear and explicit. Nothing short of reinstating the abdicated queen could reach the level of justice. Nothing short of justice, as construed by the president, secretary of state and Blount, as a part, should be the rule and aim of the administration. A friendly, honestly established, universally recognized government was to be deposed. A third monarchy, a queen of patches was to be set up in place of the Hawaiian Republic. The president of the United States, the senate of the United States, the minister of justice, the secretary of state and Blount, as a part, should be the rule and aim of the administration.
